Welcome to the October 2026 Flyer

The Harvest Festival season is now upon us and for farmers and gardeners the hot dry summer has really affected crops. Some things have flourished and others have been really disappointing. Apples for instance appear to be very thin on the ground.

Let us hope that we get enough but not too much rain during the winter to replenish the reservoirs and the ground.

I am sorry that we are still unable to deliver hard copies of the Flyer but will continue to email copies to those who have requested them and the online version will continue to be published on the village facebook page and web site. If anyone has no internet access and needs a printed copy please let me know on the contacts below.

As I have said before please check with your friends and neighbours as to whether they will have access as it is important for everyone in the village to be able to see the Flyer by some means.

4. Questions from the Public – 15 minutes allowed (nb this is not minuted)

5. Planning : a) 26/1355/MOUT Clyst Village Application –

Proposal: Outline planning application for a residential-led mixed use development of up to 2,000 dwellings including market and affordable homes, access, park and bus change and mobility hub, two form entry primary school, public openspace, neighbourhood centre/mixed use area, employment area, landscaping, drainage, associated works and infrastructure. Location: Land South Of The A3052 East Of The A376 And West Of Crealy Theme Park & Resort Clyst St Mary. .Applicant: Stuart Partners Ltd Agent: Carney Sweeney Ltd C/o Agent Mr Simon Coles, Broadwalk House, Southernhay West, EX1 1TS The over riding concern for Farringdon Parish Council was infrastructure. Concern was raised about the cumulative impact that the proposed development would have on the local highway network, particularly the A3052 corridor and the key junctions serving the eastern approaches to Exeter. Whilst the applicant states that transport modelling has considered both the proposed Clyst Village development and the emerging Marlcombe allocation, the PC remains unconvinced that the mitigation proposed adequately addresses the existing pressures on the wider highway network.

The Parish Council's particular concerns relate to: • The A3052 corridor between Farringdon and Exeter; • The convergence of traffic from the A3052 and A376 at Clyst St Mary; • The Clyst St Mary Roundabout and associated junctions; • Sandygate and M5 Junction 30; • The Clyst St George and Ebford junctions. These locations already experience significant congestion and delay. Traffic pressures are not confined to weekday peak periods and are regularly experienced throughout the year, particularly during the main seasonal holiday periods when the network is subject to additional demand.

The National Planning Policy Framework requires consideration of the residual cumulative impacts of development on the transport network. The PC is not satisfied that the information submitted demonstrates that the combined impact of this proposal, together with Marlcombe and other committed development in the area, can be accommodated without severe impacts on the operation of the network. The PC unanimously objected to the application. b) any other planning matters REF DCC/4473/2026:2nd amendment- PC re iterated original comment submitted re odour mitigation

Book Review – Graham Green - Our Man in Havana

Set in Cuba in 1958 this novel mocks the intelligence service MI6. Graham Greene had been in MI6 during the war and from that experience creates a black comedy with the Cold War as the background.

The plot entails James Wormold, an Englishman working as a vacuum cleaner salesman in Cuba who is recruited by Hawthorne from MI6. Hawthorne imagines that Wormold will have lots of high-ranking clients. But there are not many vacuum cleaner sales and funds in the bank are low. Wormold's wife has left him, and he lives with his 17-year old daughter Milly who is depicted as a devout Catholic whose halo sometimes slips. She has expensive tastes that are beyond what can be afforded. Wormold finds it difficult to say no. The other main characters are the elderly World War 1 veteran Dr Hasselbacher, with whom Wormold enjoys a drink and a chat, and Captain Segura who likes the company of Milly.

The offer to spy for Hawthorne is accepted as payment and expenses can be claimed for himself and for any agent Wormold recruits. The trouble is that Wormold has no information to report to London, nor anyone he can recruit. The humour comes thick and fast as he starts to invent agents and intelligence material. Some information is gleaned from local newspapers, but most is fabricated. Invoices for mythical agents and their expenses are submitted and paid allowing Milly to have a horse and membership at the sports club frequented by Captain Segura.

One of the invented agents is a pilot who Wormold claims has spotted some military like structures in part of the island. London is interested but wants more detail. The ingenious Wormold takes parts from one of his vacuum cleaners and draws them making out that these are what has been seen by the pilot. In London these drawings spark a lot of interest from Hawthorne's boss. Although Hawthorne thinks he recognises them as parts of a vacuum cleaner he dares not speak his concerns as that would put him in a difficult position of having recruited a dud agent.

London is so impressed by Wormold that they send him a secretary Beatrice and a radio operator. The humour escalates as Wormold tries to maintain his fabricated world with Beatrice. Life becomes even more complicated when reality becomes entangled with the imaginary.

Strange events raise the stakes, and Wormold's life is in danger. There is a climax with shots fired and Wormold and Milly are helped to escape to the UK.

The closing scene is in the London HQ of MI6. This is where Greene twists his mockery knife in deep. Perhaps if some of our political leaders had pondered the implications of this novel prior to the invasion of Iraq then a more critical stance might have been taken towards the intelligence sources.

Overdue fines scrapped at Devon's libraries

Posted on 29 September 2026 in

- Community

Library users across Devon will no longer face fines for returning books late, from Thursday 1 October 2026.

All existing overdue charges will also be removed, giving library users a clean slate.

The change follows decisions made by Devon County Council earlier this year after more than 25,000 people responded to its consultation on the future of Devon's libraries. One of those decisions was to remove charges for overdue books.

Libraries Unlimited, the charity commissioned to run Devon's libraries, removed late fees for children and young people in 2022 to help remove barriers to reading. The change will now apply to all library users.

People are being encouraged to make the most of the change, while continuing to return or renew books on time so they remain available to others.

Councillor Cheryl Cottle-Hunkin, Devon County Council Cabinet Member responsible for Libraries, said:

"Nobody should feel put off from using their local library because of overdue fines.

"Fining for overdue books is a very traditional concept that is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Where fines have been scrapped elsewhere, the results have been overwhelmingly positive, helping to remove barriers not just financially, but psychologically too.

"Libraries are at the heart of our communities, and removing overdue fines makes it easier and encourages more people to borrow books, discover a love of reading, and enjoy everything else our libraries have to offer. Libraries change lives, and we want as many people as possible to benefit from them."

Councillor Cheryl Cottle-Hunkin, Cabinet Member for Rural Affairs and Broadband

Alex Kittow, Chief Executive Officer at Libraries Unlimited, said:

"Our hope is that this brings people back into libraries who haven't been borrowing books because of overdue fines on their account. We want people to know the slate has been wiped clean.

"We don't want there to be any barriers to people using the library and we hope this will help people borrow more books.

"We also want to remind people that books are expensive, and we do need them back so that hundreds of thousands of people across Devon can benefit from the joy of reading for free."

The change applies only to overdue fines. Loan periods will remain in place, and people will still be asked to return or renew items when they are due. Reservation fees and charges for lost books will also remain.
